Q#	Notes

Introduction

There is a new interstate in your town, and its travelers, for the most part, are on bicycles or foot! This recreation/tourism corridor can become a lightning rod for new opportunities in your town.

More and more people are using the trail systems every year. They are hungry, need supplies, may want to spend the night, are enjoying the beautiful scenery and want to explore interesting towns along the trail. What they need is a "Trail Town."

To create a Trail Town, you need a dedicated core group of citizens that can envision a "healthy" downtown, both physically and economically, and organize fellow residents and merchants to join in. The Trail Town Program is patterned on "Main Street" principles, so communities who have participated in the program will recognize the format. Communities who wish to learn more can visit the National Trust Main Street Center website at www.mainstreet.org.

The success of the Trail Towns also relies on communities becoming bicycle and pedestrian oriented. There is technical assistance available through your local Department of Transportation engineering district and your regional Metropolitan Planning Organization or Rural Planning Organization. A number of resources and websites are included throughout the manual, but an especially helpful one comes from the League of American Bicyclists (www.bicyclefriendlycommunity.org) in the Technical Assistance section.

Building a Trail Town, like all things, happens step by step. The first step was building the trail to your community and now it's up to the community to entice the trail visitors off the trail into the heart of your downtown. You need to help them have a satisfying experience, allow them numerous opportunities to spend leisure time and tourist dollars in your community, and tell their friends about the great time they had on the trail and in your town.

Tips on How to Use the Blue Book Self-Assessment

1. Convene interested residents, merchants, local elected officials, and someone from the local trail organization. Invite the Bicycle-Pedestrian Coordinator from your regional DOT engineering district.
2. Set a date (and rain date) to do a walking tour of your town. Meet at the trail access area, divide into teams of 2 or 3 people (2 is preferable), distribute the blue books, and determine a time and place to regroup. Encourage the use of digital cameras to capture the good, bad, and the ugly. In fact, assigning participant photographers is recommended.
3. Each team may wish to stop for a “coffee break,” mid-tour, to collect thoughts, record observations, begin to draw conclusions.
4. Allowing for 2 to 3 hours, depending on the size of your downtown area, reassemble the self-assessment team to discuss general observations. What great assets does the town have that you would want to promote or enhance? What needs does your town have?
5. Pick one or two items and develop an action plan to address them. Make sure someone is identified to take responsibility to move the plans forward. Another person should be commissioned to hold all the self-assessment booklets, consolidate all the answers and comments into a single report that can provide the basis for a long-term plan for the community. (Note: Check marks in the “yes” column indicate the Trail Town friendly answers. The more “yes” marks, the better positioned your community is to capitalize on the trail market.)

If you have trouble figuring out how to move forward, you can contact the Trail Town Program at www.trailtowns.org or (724) 216-9160 for advice in developing community leadership and local capacity.

6. Record your progress and keep your local newspapers informed. Invite your local elected officials and legislators to help dedicate the new amenities that your town constructs or installs.

7. Revisit the summary report from time to time and add new projects to your busy lives. The visitors, and your residents, will be most appreciative of your efforts.

Consider the following scenario as you complete the self-assessment and work to consider the questions from the visitors' perspective.

It's a beautiful fall weekend and you decide to pack up the family and the bikes and head to your trail for a few days of biking. You have the trail maps and have decided to stay with friends who live near the trail and have been encouraging you to come to explore it. You know your teenagers will want to stop frequently – for food—and you're glad that the map shows towns about every ten miles along the trail. The weather is glorious and everyone is having a great time, until the first flat tire and the realization that the pump was left in the car!

Luckily the unfortunate incident happened right as they approached YOUR TOWN. Everyone dismounts and heads toward town. What did they find?
